Client view

We view each project as a partnership with you, and strive to be an extension of your internal manufacturing operations. We respect your industry expertise, and throughout a project, your engagement is encouraged to ensure we take advantage of your process knowledge.

Enterprising solutions

It is our goal to design and build automation machines that solve difficult problems and produce outstanding results in your environment. Every project we work on - no matter the size - undergoes collaborative conceptual development lead by our Chief Engineer. From there, veteran automation professionals execute every aspect of your project.

Design process

Our machine concepts begin as sketches on paper then quickly move into our SolidWorks 3D Modeling environment. In 3D, SDC engineers and designers create parts and assemblies that quickly show your machine in clear, easy to understand views. This rapid method of “design and review” allows everyone involved to voice their input at the early stages of a machine’s development.

Throughout our design process, our engineers and designers employ the latest machine design technologies, and incorporate safety and ergonomic features that minimize manufacturing costs, increase productivity, and reduce machine safety risks.

Complete solution

From start to finish SDC builds what we design. You get a complete automation solution from one supplier: Conceptual development, Mechanical and electrical engineering, Controls programming, Project management, Parts procurement, Custom parts manufacturing, Machine assembly, Testing, Start-up assistance, and Final documentation - all completed to your highest quality standards.

Absolute satisfaction

In every situation, our goal is to supply you a premium quality machine you will be proud to own, operate and display. To achieve that, we are committed to your absolute satisfaction, and every machine we manufacture is warranted and supported after installation.
